

Our Silver Chloride (AgCl) comb EEG electrodes are engineered to deliver precise, high-quality signals for brainwave monitoring. These electrodes are designed for use in both clinical and research environments, offering excellent conductivity and superior performance for EEG studies. The innovative comb-shaped design ensures minimal skin contact interference, enhancing the overall signal quality and reducing artifacts in brainwave recordings.

Key Advantages:

1. Superior Signal Quality: The use of Silver Chloride (AgCl) material ensures high accuracy in capturing electrical activity from the brain, making it ideal for research and clinical applications.
2. Comb Shape Design: The comb shape enhances stability and reduces interference from skin resistance, offering more reliable EEG signals.
3. Customizable: We offer various sizes and configurations to meet the specific needs of your research or diagnostic equipment.
4. OEM Manufacturing Expertise: As a leading EEG electrode manufacturer, we have the capability to provide tailored solutions, including private labeling, custom designs, and bulk orders.
5. Durability and Safety: The electrodes are manufactured with high-grade materials for long-lasting performance and come in sterile packaging for clinical use.

Our EEG Electrodes are available in multiple material options to suit your specific needs. In addition to the standard Silver Chloride version, we also offer Nickel-plated like our 3.5mm 4.0mm Nickel plated female snap.

And different kinds of Gold-plated materials snap, providing you with enhanced durability, conductivity, and corrosion resistance.
